Street Children and Homeless Youth: A Cross-Cultural Perspective By Lewis Apteekar, Daniel Stoecklin

This book deals with street children who live in the developing world, and homeless youth who are from the developed world. They are referred to as children in street situations (CSS) to show that the problem is both in the children and in the situation they face. The book examines several aspects of the children and their street situations, including the families of origin and the homes they leave, the children's social life, and mental health. Other aspects are the problems of published demographics, the construction of public opinion about these children and the, often violent, reactions from authorities. The book then discusses current research on children in street situations, as well as programs and policies. The book ends with recommendations about programs, policies and research.

Editorial Review

Review

From the book reviews:

“Apteakar and Stoecklin’s book provides a comprehensive review of research on street children ... . Street Children and Homeless Youth provides excellent examples of the challenges and considerations that one should address when conducting research across cultures. ... this book would be a valuable resource for scholars interested in a variety of topics, including children in difficult circumstances and childhood in the majority world.” (Judith L. Gibbons and Katelyn E. Poelker, PsycCRITIQUES, Vol. 59 (33), August, 2014)
